Dear Mrs. Maria Curcio, Ed.M.,

I am writing to recommend Roy Chan for a position with Harvard Graduate School of Education. Roy has been involved in The National Society of Leadership and Success at University of California - Irvine and has completed a rigorous leadership training program through our organization.

I'm sure you know that leadership skills are important in any successful business. That is why I think Roy would be an excellent candidate for your organization. Roy has chosen to attend many hours of training focusing on team work, goal setting, high achievement, leadership skills and styles, self motivation, and accountability. Instead of needing to learn these skills on the job, Roy will come to your organization with them already developed. Through many hours of hard work and after being reviewed by both the staff at his college as well as the national office, Roy has been awarded a Certificate of Leadership Training.

If you have not heard of The National Society of Leadership and Success' certification program, you may not realize how much work is involved for a member to achieve this status. Since joining, Roy has attended training broadcasts with presenters such as Dr. Stephen Covey, Jack Canfield, Goldie Hawn, Harvey MacKay, and Alan Dershowitz. Additionally, through bi-weekly mastermind team meetings, he has learned how to use a peer group to increase performance. After each meeting, Roy completed a journal to document his progress and goals. Finally, Roy attended a comprehensive Leadership Training Day to tie together all of his new knowledge. The certification process is only completed by an average of 1% of the students on the campuses where our organization exists.

I hope you will consider Roy for a place in your company. I am sure that he would be a valuable asset to Harvard Graduate School of Education and that his leadership certification would directly contribute to his increased performance.

Very yours truly,

Gary Tuerack
President, The National Society of Leadership and Success
